In a bustling kitchen filled with the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked pastries and a symphony of culinary creativity, the Manos brothers of Gourmaze stand united with their passion for conjuring vibrant taste profiles. The transformative art of elevating nature is in their blood. Their landscape artist father over time found a new way to transform nature through baking and the boys were not far behind.

Growing up, their father instilled in them a profound appreciation for nature's beauty and a deep sense of admiration for the wonders of the world. It was this admiration that paved the way for their culinary journey, as it sparked their curiosity for the art of baking and pastry-making. From an early age they found themselves drawn to the kitchen, fascinated by the alchemy of ingredients and the elevation of simple elements into culinary masterpieces.

From Greece to the World

While the Manos brothers were born and raised in Greece, their culinary education transcended borders. They immersed themselves in the world of international cuisine by honing their skills in prestigious French culinary techniques. However, in 2011, after five years of professional experience in the culinary world, the brothers decided it was time to embark on a new adventure. Fueled by their lifelong dream to live and cook in the world's greatest cities, they bid farewell to their hometown and set their sights on Los Angeles, California, where they would fuse their culinary expertise with their entrepreneurial spirit.
